Invitation: US-EU-Africa-Asia-Pacific and Caribbean Nanotechnology Initiative (USEACANI) Conference/Workshop.

It is with great honor for me on behalf of Focus Nanotechnology Africa Inc.(FONAI) to extend my invitation to the prestigious gathering of experts (scientists, industrialists and policy makers); the USEACANI Conference/workshop.

Venue:US- Laguardia Sheraton Hotel New York City, April 24-28, 2011

Topic: Nanotechnology initiative, nanoenergy (nanosolar cell, renewable energy) nanofiltration (nanofilm, nanofiber), nanoagriculture (production of disease resistant plant or crop), nanosensor, nanomedicine (HIV-AID, malaria, tumor, cancer), nanoparticle, nanocomposite, nanoeducation, nanotech policy and funding strategies for institutions (including governments and private sectors) and industrial development

Speakers are required to submit a page abstract in a word document with quarter of a page bio and picture by December 31, 2010 at 12 midnight (closed and not applicable to opening ceremony speakers). Speakers can also prepare a summary of their talk for publication in Journal Nanotechnology Progress International (JONPI)-this is not crucial at this point. The summary features are:

1. Minimum of two pages and maximum of ten pages including all diagrams
2. Format: Title, author, institution with email, abstract, key words, introduction reviewing what is current in the research area among others, materials and methods as the case may be, results and discussions with all figures and tables titled as the case may be, conclusions, acknowledgement, references in this format:

Book: Onah, E.J. Chemistry questions and answers (Publishers, place) 1995, pp ...

Chapter contribution: Onah, E.J. Nanofilms and the emerging nanotechnology in Polymeric nanofibers, Reneker D.H.; Fong H. eds. ACS Symposium series 918; American Chemical Society: Washington D.C.2006, pp 384

3. Minimum of times roman point 10
4. Picture can be in color or black and white
5. Electronically submitted by email: eonah@fonai.org

The updated version after your participation will be published as a proceeding in the edition of Journal Nanotechnology Progress International (JONPI).
